The People who Work There Remigia Kushner

1995 A survey instrument was developed and administered to full-time elementary teachers working in Catholic elementary schools. Of the questionnaires distributed in the six regions served by the National Catholic Educational Association (NCEA), 1,076 (52 percent) were returned. Over 90% respondents were Catholic and female, with no background as members of a religious order; 63% had received at least 4 years of Catholic schooling themselves. Most expressed high degrees of job satisfaction.

Respondents' perceptions and attitudes on financial issues, Church teachings, social concerns, quality of education, and teacher involvement are discussed, and conclusions and recommendations based on these findings are offered. Teachers in Catholic schools earned an average of $6,000 per year less than public school peers; most felt that high costs of Catholic schooling prevented many families from enrolling their children. Younger teachers and teachers who had spent less time in Catholic schools as students were considerably more likely to disagree with Church teachings on birth control, abortion, and homosexuality. Younger teachers were also found to value tolerance and broadmindedness in general more highly than Church membership. Attitudes toward conflict resolution were widely divided. Five appendices include: a copy of the survey instrument; the letter to principals in participating schools; the letter to the teachers; second letter to principals; and the survey and responses.

Children at the Center Kathe Taylor 1998 Do tests really matter? Whether they accurately reflect how much children have learned is a question many teachers would answer with an emphatic No But as the movement for standardized testing sweeps the nation, it is clear that tests do matter: When children don't do well on them, they suffer. Children at the Center provides solutions for resolving the ethical and practical dilemmas posed by this trend. It was written by teachers who have seen otherwise well-respected schools damaged by poor test scores . . . who have personally struggled with assessment that doesn't align well with curriculums . . . who have discovered that most teachers are ill-equipped to confidently interpret norm-referenced test scores, and therefore be effective advocates for students. Mostly, it is written from a pragmatic perspective geared toward the needs of children. To that end, readers will find: an innovative, ethical, inquiry-, and workshop-based approach to test preparation practical, teacher-ready workshops and student materials that have been field tested in several states; and refined based on classroom teacher feedback models of responses to real-life questions parents typically ask about testing a teacher-friendly review of norm-referenced test construction and interpretation. As standardized tests continue to shape curriculums, and teachers are held more and more accountable for student performance, Children at the Center will prove essential in helping us pass the real test: preparing children for the future.
