Visualizing Biological Information Clifford A Pickover 1995-12-15 Biological data of all kinds is proliferating at an incredible rate. If humans attempt to read such data in the form of numbers and letters, they will take in the information at a snail's pace. If the information is rendered graphically, however, human analysts can assimilate it and gain insight at a much faster rate. The emphasis of this book is on the graphic representation of information-containing sequences such as DNA and amino acid sequences in order to help the human analyst find interesting and biologically relevant patterns. The editor's goal is to make this voyage through molecular biology, genetics and computer graphics as accessible to a broad audience as possible, with the inclusion of glossaries at the end of most chapters and program outlines where applicable. The book will be of most interest to biologists and computer scientists and the various large reference lists should be of interest to beginners and advanced students of biology, graphic art and computer science. Contributors have sought to find pattern and meaning in the cacophony of genetic and protein sequence data using unusual computer graphics and musical techniques.

Teacher's Study Guide on the Biology of Human Populations Unesco 1975 Factual and conceptual information dealing with the biology of human populations is offered in this guide for secondary science teachers. Instructional approaches are reviewed and suggestions are offered for use of the problem method approach, the discussion technique, and the project option. Information is organized into an introduction and five parts. The introduction described adaptation possibilities and highlights basic ecological concepts and principles. The five parts focus on: (1) evolution of human populations (addressing the topics of genetics and evolution); (2) environment of human populations (synthesizing information on energy, atmosphere, water, soils, biota, oceans, nutrition, diseases, and mineral resources); (3) dynamics of human populations (identifying demographic parameters and population patterns); (4) reproduction in human populations (containing materials on human reproduction and sexual behavior); and (5) design for survival (discussing ecosystem management and control of environmental quality, fertility regulation, and humanity's future). Lists of reference readings are included after each of the parts. (ML)
