Dec 23, 2025 · For a function to be differentiable, the following conditions must be satisfied: Condition 1: The function should be continuous at the point. A discontinuous line is not differentiable. Condition 3: ... In mathematics, a differentiable function of one real variable is a function whose derivative exists at each point in its domain. In other words, the graph of a differentiable function has a non-vertical tangent line ... We introduce the notion of differentiability, discuss the differentiability of standard functions and examples of non-differentiable behavior. We then describe differentiability of a function of two ... The differentiability is the slope of the graph of a function at any point in the domain of the function. Both continuity and differentiability, are complementary functions to each other. We can check by taking some limits: Therefore $f'(0) = \lim_{x \rightarrow 0} \frac{f(x) - f(0)}{x - 0}$ and $f(x)$ is not differentiable at $x = 0$. So not all continuous functions are differentiable (but all differentiable functions must be continuous!) We explore the notion of differentiability at a point and its relationship with continuity, using the definition of a derivative. If a function is differentiable at $x = c$, then it is continuous at $x = c$. In Calculus, differentiability lies at the heart of understanding smoothness in functions. A function is deemed differentiable at a point if it has a well-defined tangent line at that point. This concept enables ...
