The Quarterly Review 1915

For Thou Art with Me Judith Lane Bynum

2018-05-25 Every person who goes through the emotional and physical upheaval of cancer has a story. Most, however, do not write it down. In this remarkable collection of poems, Judith Bynum has shared a bit of her soul. In the midst of her pain and suffering of cancer, she expresses hanging questions, lingering doubts, and uncertain futures what most people cannot easily verbalize. When she felt her worst, the verses came rumbling and tumbling out of her in the wee hours of the morning, calming the pain in the process. The poems were her ladder out of the hole. In times when she felt her faith and hope slipping, the poetry helped her look up, and there was God, always near. The power of the poems is that they were written in the midst of the pain, not afterward, looking back. Judith's ability to express herself will hopefully help a cancer victim who is struggling to find the right words. That in itself is powerful. Sharing her weaknesses and vulnerabilities is what makes these poems real. Often she offers a humorous view of the trials of cancer and the changes it wreaks on the body and spirit. There is no resignation or acquiescence in the words, both of which are seen often among those who are struggling; instead, there is acceptance and surrender. In the midst of her questions and pains, her faith shines through. This powerful book will inspire readers to remember that God is always near.

entire attitude about living. Above all, she began to create. She started rewriting nursery rhymes, turning "Mary Had a Little Lamb" into "Leftie Had a Little Lump." She then moved on to Christmas carols: "The Twelve Months of Treatment," "What Growth Is This?" and more. Folk songs and jazz standards followed. Eventually she began painting accompanying art with oil and canvas. Iris channeled all her energy into healing creativity. Thanks to chemotherapy, surgeries, radiation, and her radical zest for life, she reaped the fruits of her labors in September 2021: No evidence of disease. Now in her second year of complete remission, Iris publishes her poems, songs, and stunning art in The Breast Cancer Garden of Verses. The Breast Cancer Garden of Verses contains poems, song lyrics, and artwork that follow Iris Jacobs through her journey from diagnosis to complete healing. This collection contains pieces that are humorous, uplifting, touching, and empowering. Through her choice of source material, Iris Jacobs engages the children within all of us, comforting them, challenging them, and trusting them. The Breast Cancer Garden of Verses will resonate with those who are living with cancers and other chronic illnesses. Art Therapy and Cancer Care Diane Waller 2005-07-16 Inspired by the experience of art therapists who have pioneered work with people with cancer and including those who have experienced this devastating illness at first hand, this book acknowledges the outstanding work of the Corinne Burton Trust which has supported the development of art therapy services in hospices and clinics throughout the United Kingdom. Narratives, case studies, new theoretical insights, and the inclusion of writing from Italy, France and the United States of America contribute to the strength and originality of the book. Therapeutic work is placed in its institutional context, demonstrating the importance for the art therapy service of being understood, supported and valued at managerial level - and how the lack of this can impact adversely on patient care. Moreover, many of the contributions have a sociological and anthropological nature, which gives the book a unique and challenging dimension. Art Therapy and Cancer Care is key reading for art therapists, artists in health care and other health or social care professionals who are looking for approaches that will improve the quality of living for cancer patients, yet not shy away from the process of dying.
