Predictive analytics used in different area to ... This paper examines the various types of classification algorithms in Data Mining, their applications and categorically states the strengths and limitations of each type. The number of support vectors found can be used to compute an (upper) bound on the expected error rate of the SVM classifier, which is independent of the data dimensionality Data classification is a two-step process, consisting of a learning step (where a classification model is constructed) and a classification step (where the model is used to predict class labels for given data). An algorithm (model, method) is called a classification algorithm if it uses the data and its classification to build a set of patterns: discriminant and /or characteristic rules or other pattern descriptions. Data mining performs several tasks one of its major task is classification. Classification maps data into predefined groups or classes that is why it is often referred to as supervised learning.
