New Developments in Engineering Education for Sustainable Development Walter Leal Filho 2016-06-23

This book discusses essential approaches and methods in connection with engineering education for sustainable development. Prepared as a follow-up to the 2015 Engineering Education in Sustainable Development (EESD) Conference held in British Columbia, Canada, it offers the engineering community key information on the latest trends and developments in this important field. Reflecting the need to address the links between formal and informal education, the scholars and professionals who contribute to this book show by means of case studies and projects how the goal of fostering sustainable development in the context of engineering education can be achieved. In particular, they discuss the need for restructuring teaching at engineering-focused institutions of higher education and provide practical examples of how to do so. The book places special emphasis on state-of-the-art descriptions of approaches, methods, initiatives and projects from around the world, illustrating the contribution of engineering and affiliated sciences to sustainable development in various contexts, and at an international scale.

Re-imagining Curriculum Lynn Quinn 2019-11-15 The book argues that academics, academic developers and academic leaders need to undertake curriculum work in their institutions that has the potential to disrupt common sense notions about curriculum and create spaces for engagement with scholarly concepts and theories, to re-imagine curricula for the changing times. Now, more than ever in the history of higher education, curriculum practices and processes need to be shared; the findings of research undertaken on curriculum need to be disseminated to inform curriculum work. We hope the book will enable readers to look beyond their contextual difficulties and constraints, to find spaces where they can dream, and begin to implement, innovative and creative solutions to what may seem like intractable challenges or difficulties.

Accelerating the Circular Economy Transition: Innovations and Developments from Africa Olawale Olayide 2026-05-05 The circular economy is an alternative to the traditional linear economy that is focused on "take-make-dispose". The concept is identified as an important solution to contribute to climate change mitigations and sustainable development goals, and gains the attention of policymakers, investors, scholars and businesses globally. The circular economy concept is still under development since the term circular economy is still new. The current concept is mostly developed by institutions based in western countries and the global North, which results that the current research agenda being mostly focused on developing circular economy knowledge for those areas mostly developed countries, with African emerging economies being neglected. There is a limited focus on developing countries, and even more on African emerging economies that have the opportunity to leapfrog to a circular economy. As a result, the current body of knowledge about the circular economy is ignoring the developments in African countries. Many simple questions surrounding African connected to circular economy state and practices and success factors in circular economy transitions remain unanswered. In 2022, the World Circular Economy Forum will be hosted for the first time in Africa, whereby leaders in the circular economy will meet to discuss the circular economy developments in the world. This is an additional reason, why more knowledge should be created about the circular economy for Africa, and why circular economy developments in Africa cannot be ignored. Therefore, this research topic aims to stimulate circular economy research with the objective to build a body of knowledge for circular economy in Africa with the objective to accelerate the circular economy transition within the continent. Also, it has the objective to contribute to the body of circular economy knowledge at large. The objective of this research objective is to promote circular economy research for Africa, and contribute to knowledge gaps to accelerate the circular economy transition in Africa. Areas to be covered in this research topic may include but are not limited to: - The current state of the circular economy development in Africa, and its best practices - Success factors (barriers and drivers) that support the circular economy transition in Africa - Documentation of the best practices of the circular economy in Africa - Opportunities for the circular economy transition in Africa - Policy related topics related to the

Current Developments in Biotechnology and Bioengineering Sunil Kumar 2021-06-16 Strategic Perspectives in Solid Waste and Wastewater Management explores conventional and advanced biotechnologies for waste management, including socio-economic aspects, techno-economic feasibility, models and modeling tools, and a detailed life-cycle assessment approach in solid waste (SW) and wastewater (WW). These innovative technologies are highly applicable to current real-world situations. The enormous increase in the quantum and diversity of SW and WW - including waste materials generated due to human activity and their potentially harmful effects on the environment and public health - have led to increasing awareness about an urgent need to adopt novel technologies for appropriate management of both SW and WW. While there is an obvious need to minimize the generation of wastes and to reuse and recycle them, the technologies for managing such wastes can play a vital role in mitigating problems. Besides recovery of substantial energy, these technologies can lead to a considerable reduction in the overall waste quantities requiring final disposal, which can be better managed for safe disposal in a controlled manner while meeting pollution control standards. - Outlines appropriate technologies for solid waste and wastewater management systems and their applications - Presents and evaluates the Best Available Technology (BAT) and includes global case studies - Provides methods for evaluating the way to use appropriate technological systems to develop the best technically and economically feasible projects worldwide - Offers an excellent resource for university students to use for their research and dissertations

ICTs and Higher Education in Africa 2007 This overview reviews existing national and international policies with regard to the use of Information and Communication Technologies (ICTs) to enhance teaching and learning within institutions of tertiary education. Common areas of strength and of weakness with regard to educational technology readiness in the Partnership for Higher Education in Africa (PHEA) countries are explored. The challenges to the deployment of ICT in tertiary education within the PHEA countries are outlined. Finally lessons learned and possibilities for collaboration are highlighted.
