Transportation Systems for Tourism M. R. Dileep 2023-01-01 This textbook provides a comprehensive learning resource material for tourism transportation. Exploring the interrelationship between transport and tourism, it demonstrates how different types of transportation systems interact and are combined within the tourism destination framework. It addresses topics such as the geographical aspects of tourism transportation, technological advances in transportation, public transportation in tourism, drive tourism, recreational transportation, and various forms of tourism, including car, rail, coach, water, cycling, and space tourism. Readers will also learn about sustainability aspects, consumer behavior, and tourist behavior modelling. The book offers a valuable asset for graduate as well as master degree students in regional and spatial science, transportation engineering, and tourism and transportation economics, as well as for professionals in the travel, tourism, transport, and hospitality industries who are interested in the link between tourism and transportation, its benefits and impacts. Tourist destinations can strategically use this learning resource to gain a better understanding of the leisure and recreational aspects of the transportation system and consequently boost their appeal to tourists.

Exploring SARS-CoV-2 Interactions in Aging and Comorbid Populations Carmine Siniscalchi 2026-04-21 Aging and pre-existing comorbid conditions significantly enhance the severity and prolong the course of COVID-19. These conditions include but are not limited to hypertension, cancer, chronic infections, obesity, diabetes, and heart, lung, or kidney diseases. Such vulnerabilities are notably prevalent among the elderly, who represent a large fraction of severely affected patients, particularly those requiring hospitalization. Current research highlights the critical nature of SARS-CoV-2 infections in this population and underscores the need for detailed studies focused on older adults. This Research Topic aims to examine the complexities of SARS-CoV-2 infections among aged and comorbid patients, seeking to uncover targeted strategies for enhancing control over COVID-19's impact both in its early stages and as longer-term consequences develop. Given the urgent necessity to manage and mitigate disease progression in this vulnerable group, investigating specific interaction mechanisms between the virus and host in the context of pre-existing health conditions will be crucial. To gather further insights into the interplay of aging and comorbid conditions with COVID-19, we welcome articles addressing, but not limited to, the following themes: • Mechanisms by which aging and comorbidities influence COVID-19 severity and progression • Comparative studies on SARS-CoV-2 outcomes in aged populations with different comorbid conditions • Impacts of specific comorbidities such as diabetes, hypertension, or obesity on COVID-19 in older adults • Innovative preclinical models to study COVID-19 in elderly or comorbid populations • Interventional strategies and treatments tailored for elderly COVID-19 patients Scientists worldwide are encouraged to contribute their research and perspectives, particularly those that utilize preclinical models to explore how aging and health conditions exacerbate COVID-19 outcomes.

Endothelial Dysfunction During Inflammation and Alloimmunity Olaf Penack 2019-04-09 Endothelial cells form the inner lining of blood and lymphatic vessels and they have frequent interactions with immune cells as well as foreign agents. Endothelial function is crucially involved in physiologic immunity at different stages including recruitment of leukocytes, angiogenesis and tissue repair. Endothelial dysfunction is a not well-defined term, it is widely used to describe the non-physiologic activity of endothelial cells. It has been suggested that endothelial dysfunction plays a role in a variety of human diseases, such as arteriosclerosis, cancer, autoimmunity and sepsis. More recently, a role of lymphatic endothelial cells as well as vascular endothelial cells in the pathophysiology of inflammation and allo-immune reactions has been suggested. Development of novel therapeutic approaches to normalize endothelial dysfunction is currently an unmet medical need. Until now, the cellular and molecular mechanisms of mutual influences between endothelial dysfunction and human diseases remain largely unexplored, constituting a frontier hindering the development of new therapies. This Research Topic aims to build a forum for a wide range of scientific studies in the fields of endothelial dysfunction during inflammatory diseases and transplantation.
