Plant Life Mary Lou Kenworthy 2010-06 Everyone who has ever worked for a living can relate to PLANT LIFE. This work of fiction is about the perseverance of a middle-aged 'Yankee' woman trying to survive in the 'south' working in what is considered a man's occupation. Marie Martin's training in mechanical and plant maintenance should have helped her find a job anywhere. When Three Mile Island reopened after a near meltdown, Marie decide it was time to move to a safer place with the line of dogs she was developing. Marie's long range goal was to become a writer. An old friend, who now lived in Georgia, encouraged her to move there. Marie had planned to retire in a milder climate; she figured that as long as she was moving anyway, she should make the move south now. Her friend told her everything about the area that she thought Marie would like to hear. However, it was not an accurate representation of the situation. The wages would not be as good as in Pennsylvania and there would not be as many dog shows or lure coursing trials but Marie was willing to live with that for the chance to write. Her friend promised to co-author a book with her. Moving to GA was like stepping back fifty years in time and Marie experienced cultural shock. When her PA home did not sell right away she ran into financial difficulties that seemed only to mount. Inconceivable problems arose at her jobs. Marie's dream of writing seemed to be getting pushed further and further away. Nevertheless it was an adventurous and exciting time for Marie. She maintained her hobby with the dogs while earning a living and fulfilling other obligations. Marie's intestinal fortitude helped her through the hard times on her way to realizing her dream.

Nurturing Basenji Dog Foster Goodnews 2023-06-08 The Basenji is an ancient dog breed with a distinct look and characteristic bark. The Basenji is a small to medium-sized hound breed with its origins in Central Africa, notably the Congo region. It is sometimes referred to as the "African Barkless Dog" because to its unique yodel-like vocalizations. Basenjis are well-suited to the roles of hunter and tracker due to their independent spirit, keen intelligence, and high prey drive. Basenjis are medium-sized canines that average 16-17 inches in height at the shoulder and 22-24 pounds in weight. They stand out due to their small stature, short coat (available in many colors), and striking characteristics. Large, triangular prick ears are one of their most distinguishing traits, as is the tightly curled tail they carry behind them. Their coats can be red, black, brindle, or multicolored, and are normally short, thick, and lustrous. Basenjis are famous for their unique vocalizations. Basenjis are known for their lack of vocalization. Instead, they make a wide variety of vocalizations that are rarely heard in nature and are commonly misidentified as human or animal voices. One of the reasons these dogs are frequently called "barkless" is because of their distinctive vocalization. The Basenji breed is known for its fierce independence. They are renowned for their wit, inquisitiveness, and ingenuity. Because of their tendency toward autonomy and aloofness, training them can be a challenge. Well-behaved pets are the result of early and persistent socialization and training. Basenjis, like cats, are well-known for their cleanliness and lack of body odor; this trait has earned them the nickname "cat dog." Due to their high prey drive, Basenjis were initially developed to hunt small wildlife in Africa. They can track prey with ease thanks to their acute sense of smell. Because of their quickness and agility, they excel at lure coursing and other canine competitions. Their intense predation drive, however, means they should be closely monitored whenever they are near smaller creatures like cats or other small pets. While Basenjis tend to be quite robust, they are susceptible to the same health concerns that affect other dog breeds. Hip dysplasia, PRA, Fanconi syndrome (a kidney ailment), and thyroid problems are all examples. Prevention strategies for these diseases include responsible breeding methods, frequent veterinary treatment, a nutritious diet, and regular exercise. With their one-of-a-kind appearance, peculiar vocalizations, and fiercely independent nature, Basenjis stand out as a rare and ancient dog breed. Dogs of this breed need constant training and socializing because they are smart, active, and self-sufficient. To make sure you are obtaining a healthy and well-adjusted dog if you decide to add a Basenji to your home, you should look into finding a reputable breeder or rescue group.

Decision Point Mitch L. Gohman 2008-07 Toward Spiritual Sovereignty diagnoses societal samodaya (Buddhist terminology for emotional craving). The author uses extensive knowledge and wisdom from masters of ages past and present to refocus the spirit of man (spiritus mundi) on a wholesome re-creation of the world community. Every soul has the divine right to determine his or her sacred path to their unique destiny upon the horizons of learned choice. Political aggression, (governmental power), religious aggression (proselytizing), and financial aggression (voracious capitalism) provide conflict and work against the realization of happiness and wellbeing. These works are an attempt to advocate for the abolition of hindrance toward those ends, to advocate, without fetter, for spiritual sovereignty of every soul. Each person, Homo Divinitas (man of Divinity) should be able to experience life without threat. Threat can manifest in the form of hunger, poverty, illiteracy, illness, or physical/emotional/spiritual aggression. The 21st century provides an atmosphere of escalating violence, and terror, amidst the Middle East in particular, and the world in general. Such as the Roman Forum prior to the turn of the first millennia after Christ, mankind seems unable or unwilling to cease participation in the spiritual morphine of violence whether real, virtual, or vicarious. Mr. Casperson's authorship proposes effective measures for self-enlightenment and effective ways to cope with violence and political and religious terrorism. Human Infancy Daniel G. Freedman 2016-07-07 Originally published in 1974, this volume is primarily devoted to what is known about human infancy from an ethological, evolutionary viewpoint. Included are discussions of pan-specific traits, presumably shared by all infants; individual genetic variations on these behaviours (as judged by twin-studies); sex differences, presumably shared by infants of all ethnic groups; and genetically based ethnic differences. However, the author favours neither biological determinism nor cultural determinism, and does not consider 'interactionism' to be a viable solution. Instead, a monistic position is taken, stressing the inseparability of the innate and the acquired, of genetics and environment, and of biology and culture. The heredity-environment issue is tackled head-on throughout the volume. The interaction between the two (an implied dualism) is described as a statistical abstraction from measured populations, while the position here is that heredity and environment are not separable in any single organism. In the same vein, the author argues that on logical grounds everything one does, every 'cultural' act, has within it some biological component.
