2010-03-25 Software testing has been considered so important that organizations can assign teams only for testing activities. Testing is an important activity to ensure software quality. Tests are usually run several times to certify that code maintenance did not accidentally insert defects into working parts of the software. In such situations, test teams shall be able to estimate the required effort to execute test cases in its schedules and to request more resources or negotiate deadlines when necessary. When regarding model-based testing approaches that we use in our documented Integrated and Optimized Software Testing methodology (IOSTP) [1-4], a high number of test cases can be automatically generated. As team resources are limited, it may be not practical to execute all generated test cases. Their complexity usually determines the effort required to execute them and it can be used for planning test resources and test suites. Several software development estimation models have been proposed over the years. However, these models do not estimate the effort for executing a given test suite, since their estimations are based on software development complexity instead of its test planning, test case design and test execution complexity. According to our reading of the literature (e. g. [5-14]), "best practices" in model-based effort estimation include: Local calibration (or LC); i. e. using local data to set two special tuning parameters; Stratification; i. e. given a database of past projects, and a current project to be estimated, restrict local calibration to just those records from similar projects.

International Conference on Sustainable Computing & Intelligent Systems R. Arunadevi 2026-03-19 Sustainable Computing And Intelligent Systems are transforming the way technology supports society and the environment. With the rapid growth of digital technologies, it is essential to develop systems that are energy-efficient, environmentally responsible, and capable of solving complex problems through intelligent solutions. Sustainable computing focuses on reducing energy consumption, minimizing electronic waste, and promoting eco-friendly technological practices. At the same time, intelligent systems such as artificial intelligence, machine learning, and smart automation help improve decision-making, efficiency, and innovation across various fields including healthcare, education, agriculture, and industry. The "International Conference on Sustainable Computing & Intelligent Systems" provides a platform for researchers, academicians, and industry professionals to share knowledge, present innovative ideas, and discuss the latest developments in these emerging areas. The conference aims to encourage collaboration and promote sustainable technological solutions for a smarter and greener future.

Query Processing in Database Systems W. Kim 2012-12-06 This book is an anthology of the results of research and development in database query processing during the past decade. The relational model of data provided tremendous impetus for research into query processing. Since a relational query does not specify access paths to the stored data, the database management system (DBMS) must provide an intelligent query-processing subsystem which will evaluate a number of potentially efficient strategies for processing the query and select the one that optimizes a given performance measure. The degree of sophistication of this subsystem, often called the optimizer, critically affects the performance of the DBMS. Research into query processing thus started has taken off in several directions during the past decade. The emergence of research into distributed databases has enormously complicated the tasks of the optimizer. In a distributed environment, the database may be partitioned into horizontal or vertical fragments of relations. Replicas of the fragments may be stored in different sites of a network and even migrate to other sites. The measure of performance of a query in a distributed system must include the communication cost between sites. To minimize communication costs for-queries involving multiple relations across multiple sites, optimizers may also have to consider semi-join techniques.
